

SMALL BUSINESS MEN TO STRESS CAPITAL NEED

New Source That Would Give Longer Term
Financing Sought

EIGHT HUNDRED TO CONFERENCE

Among Other Matters To Be Up Be Fair Trade
Practices and Prices

By The Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Eight hundred representatives of the nation's small business men, gathering tomorrow to formulate suggestions for President Roosevelt, will report that their most urgent need is a source of new capital.

Ernest G. Draper, assistant secretary of commerce, said today that topic was the theme of hundreds of letters sent to administration officials from all over the country.

The best banking brains in the government, Secretary Morgenthau commented, have been studying the question for years but have not solved it.

The small business men put unemployment as the second most vital question they will discuss in an open meeting at the commerce department before sending a delegation to the White House.

Unemployment, however, headed the discussion list of a group of United Automobile Workers' officials calling on Mr. Roosevelt today.

Homer Martin, president of the auto union; Richard I. Frankenstein, vice president, and William Munger, research director, came here to give the President their ideas on how to regularize employment in auto plants and assure a larger annual income from the workers.

Consider Trade Practices
Mr. Roosevelt has criticized overselling and too liberal credit terms as contributing to irregular production and unemployment in the auto industry. He discussed these problems with auto manufacturers earlier in his series of conferences on the business situation.

Besides the need for new capital, the small business men are expected to consider:

Fair trade practices, prices and monopolies; social security, government research, wages and hours, housing, installment selling, and development and location of small industries.

"Strange as it may seem," Draper said, "most of the letters say they favor wage and hour legislation, although some people say such legislation would hurt small business men."

To assist in the discussion of the loan question, the commerce department asked Chairman Jesse H. Jones of the reconstruction finance corporation to be present.

The RFC has loaned about 180,000,000 to industry in the three years it has had such authority. The 12 federal reserve banks added 150,000,000 more.

Talk of Limitations

Those skeptical of the idea of new government loans to small businesses point to the relative smallness of these previous loans as supporting their thesis that the businessmen who can not get financing are merely poor risks.

Others reply that what business needs is long term securities financing, not temporary federal. Long-term obligations generally are outside the field of commercial bank lending. They belong to the "investment banking" field.

Securities of large corporations, experts pointed out, usually can be disposed of by investors through the New York Stock Exchange or similar machinery, but in the case of small companies the market is limited.

Some government and private financial experts have suggested establishment of a special type of bank to loan long term money to small business—possibly with the government supplying part or all of the bank's capital.

Ready To "Holler"

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—(P)—A delegation of "little business" men, advised by one of its members to "holler like hell" in Washington, will leave today to confer with President Roosevelt.

A preliminary session of some 90 of the 118 men summoned to the capital from the New York area indicated yesterday that the group can holler at least that loud, and perhaps louder.

Their yelling—mostly directed at each other—lasted so long that the drafting of a program for presentation to the president was

SMALL BUSINESS MEN TRAVEL AT OWN EXPENSE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—(P)—The 800 small business men invited here tomorrow for a conference on economic conditions are traveling at their own expense.

Secretary Roper is sponsoring the meeting, but his commerce department has no money to finance the trip for any of them.

Most of the 800 are persons who asked to be invited or who wrote business recovery suggestions to President Roosevelt or the commerce department.

In some cases, invitations were issued at the request of congressmen or trade associations. Government officials said they made no choices of their own.

SCORE OF NEW MEMBERS FOR SEDALIA C. OF C.

Plans To Advertise Sedalia and Lake Region Are Announced

The board of directors of the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce met at noon today at Hotel St. Francis, with thirteen members present. Joseph L. Rosenthal, president, presided, Jack Crawford, secretary.

Tom Cloney, chairman of the membership committee, reported twenty new members.

The board authorized Mr. Rosenthal, their president, to endorse the nomination of Major T. J. Strickler, of Kansas City, and James F. Owens, Oklahoma City, for directors of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Jack Crawford was instructed to go to Kansas City next Monday to attend a hearing before the Interstate Commerce Commission, in the interest of the Missouri Pacific railroad lines short haul trucking business.

W. F. Stanley, chairman of the roads committee, reported on a recent meeting he attended in Versailles, as a director of the Lake of the Ozarks commission. He reported they are soon to send out 50,000 pamphlets advertising the Lake of the Ozarks region.

Chas. O. Botz, chairman of the industrial committee, made a report, and secured the approval of the board to inaugurate an advertising campaign, to prepare attractive literature on Sedalia and its trade territory, for advertising purposes.

I. H. Reed reported for the budget and finance committee.

Plans were discussed for the Fire Inspection Week program, the latter part of this month.

YOUTH IS ACCUSED IN A KIDNAPING

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 1.—(P)—Fifteen-year-old Everett Dale Corcoran and his attorney conferred today in preparation for the youth's arraignment on a charge of participating in the kidnaping of C. A. Robertson, Desloge, Mo., real estate dealer.

Corcoran was not permitted to enter a plea at an appearance yesterday, Federal Judge George H. Moore deferring the arraignment until Samuel White, St. Louis attorney appointed for the defense, could go over the case.

The youth told Judge Moore his father, a WPA worker at Esther, Mo., was without funds to employ a defense against the charge, for which the maximum penalty is death.

Robertson, a former Muskogee, Okla., real estate dealer, was shot three times as he escaped his abductors after being taken into Arkansas. His wounds were slight.

Clyde Wright, 24, whom Robertson identified as one of his abductors, was found shot to death in his mother's home near Desloge after a posse surrounded the house.

CONGRESSMAN FOR REPEAL OF A LAW A WEEK

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—(P)—Representative Barton (R-NY) continuing his campaign to "repeal a law a week," proposed today liquidation of the United States Housing Corporation, which he said, "has had no real function since the World War."

"Here we have an illustration of what a devil of a job it is to kill a government bureau once it gets established," Barton said.

"Nearly ten years ago . . . congress decreed its liquidation; yet it still is in existence. It is a cinch to pass a law and create a new bureau. But can you kill a useless bureau? Just try it!"

CHARGED IN NOTE AN ITALIAN 'SUB' SANK FREIGHTER

Spanish Claim Insurgents
Have No Submarines
of Their Own

ELEVEN LOST AS THE VESSEL SANK

British Send Out Searching Destroyers For Marauding Craft

By The Associated Press.
LONDON, Feb. 1.—The Spanish government today charged Italy had assigned four destroyers and two submarines to the Spanish insurgent fleet and that an Italian submarine sank the British merchantman Endymion off Spain's southeast coast with a loss of eleven lives.

The British admiralty rushed four destroyers armed with depth charges to the Mediterranean area where the coal laden freighter was torpedoed.

Pablo de Azcarate y Florez, Spanish government ambassador, accused Italy in a note handed to the British foreign office.

The Spanish government, he declared in another communiqué, is "amazed" that "foreign intervention in Spain is permitted to such an extent as to allow the rebels (insurgents) to receive whole, important units of a foreign fleet."

Azcarate y Florez denied that the insurgents have submarines of their own and declared "it must be clear to the whole world" that the Endymion's attacker was Italian.

Besides the British destroyers already searching for the submarine, four others left Gibraltar today, steaming eastward.

They were the Faulknor, Fearless, Foresight and Foxhound. Alfred Duff Cooper, first lord of the admiralty, told a questioner in the house of commons, "We are taking steps to increase our patrol at once."

He added, however, that the Endymion was off the coast recommended by the Nyon anti-piracy accord and carried no wireless.

The British patrol destroyers were under orders to drop depth charges, without hesitation, if the attacking submarine were sighted and attempted to resist capture.

The Nyon accord against "piracy," signed last Sept. 14, established that any such submarines be "counter attacked and if possible destroyed."

The destroyer flotilla centered its patrol about the Cape Tinos area, where the Endymion sank.

An informed source said the British government "takes a very serious view of the sinking and are considering what steps are required to deal with the situation."

It was emphasized that Britain does not recognize the right of Spanish insurgents to blockade the coasts of Spain. The Spanish government said insurgents sank the Endymion.

Three of the dead aboard the Endymion were British and one was a Swede, Charles M. Larsson, official of the European non-intervention-in-Spain committee.

The Endymion, sunk Sunday, was carrying a cargo of coal for Cartagena and left Gibraltar Saturday.

Other Vessels Attacked
The searching destroyers were the Fortune, Fire Drake, Fury and Forester. They are among the most modern of the entire British Mediterranean patrol.

The patrol was relaxed late in 1937, these circles disclosed, because of more normal conditions. Several ships put into port to refuel and to give their crews a rest, thus leaving "considerably less than 50 destroyers" engaged in the anti-piracy patrol. The air force unit of ten bombing seaplanes in two squadrons also returned to England in December.

The planes still are in England despite bombing of the British freighter Thorpeness at Tarragona Jan. 20.

Other recent attacks include the British freighter Lake Geneva, missed by a torpedo Jan. 15, and the Dutch freighter, Hannah Holland, torpedoed and sunk Jan. 11. More than 25 British ships have been attacked by sea or from the air in the year and a

The Sedalia Business and Professional Women's club will have its regular business meeting at Kueck's Tavern at 6:30 o'clock Thursday night. The international relations' committee, Miss Marguerite O'Connell, chairman, will be in charge.

NINE CONVICTED IN FAKE CLAIMS

By The Associated Press.
EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., Feb. 1.—Eight members of one family and a woman friend were convicted in federal court here today on charges of conspiracy to use the mails to defraud on fake accident claims.

In addition, Mrs. Bertha Womack, her husband, John Womack, a former insurance agent, and their daughter, Mrs. Thomas Felis, were found guilty on the 12 other counts of the indictment.

The government presented evidence they used the mails in trying to collect indemnities from insurance companies for faked falls in many midwestern cities.

The other defendants are Mrs. Joe Miller and Mrs. John Ehrman, also daughters of Womack, their husbands, Mrs. Felis' husband, Thomas Felis, and Miss Margaret Robertson.

Maximum penalty for conspiracy is two years in prison and a fine of $10,000; for mail fraud, five years and $10,000.

The jury reached a verdict after six hours of deliberation.

The government's evidence listed claims made by nine defendants for 57 falls in 1935 and 1936 against 45 stores and transportation companies in Chicago and Peoria, Ill.; Indianapolis and Evansville, Ind.; Louisville, Ky.; Memphis, Little Rock, Kansas City, St. Louis and East St. Louis.

The evidence also showed they obtained settlements in 39 cases for a total of $2,085.

STUDENT DAY A NEW ACTIVITY AT SMITH-COTTON

Students To Substitute
For One Hour For Regular Teachers

One of the newest activities to be promoted by the Smith-Cotton high school Senior Student Council is Student day at the school Thursday. This week there have been elections in every class to determine the student who will substitute for the regular instructor.

This will be the first time any activity of the sort has been presented here for many years, and is planned to help give the students a better idea of the tasks and patience an instructor must have.

Last Friday, out of six candidates selected by the senior council, one boy was elected to take the place of principal for one day. This boy is Paul Meyers.

Be Student Teachers
Following are the list of the names of the students who will serve as teacher in their various classes for one hour:

RESOLUTION TO LIMIT SALARIED JOBS

By The Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Delegates at the United Mine Workers convention refused today to vote down a resolution against union officers holding both union and political jobs and drawing salaries from each.

The action of the delegates created a brief crisis in the convention since the resolutions committee headed by Patrick J. Fagan, had recommended defeat of the resolution.

John L. Lewis, the mine workers president, after hearing one delegate assail the holding of two salaried jobs, announced that the resolution had been placed in the hands of the wrong committee and ordered it sent to the constitutional committee.

The resolution, introduced by the local City, Pa., local, said that throughout the organization there are a great number of men holding two, or more, jobs, with a high salary in the union and politics.

The resolution asked the convention to "condemn such practice and have the international and district officers stop it within the organization." It also asked for rules "to prohibit anyone, man or woman, to hold more than one salaried job."

FORD ASSEMBLY PLANT TO OPERATIONS AGAIN

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 1.—(P)—The St. Louis assembly plant of the Ford Motor Company resumed operations today after a one-day shutdown.

A plant officer said yesterday's closing was necessary "to permit distribution to catch up with production," but that a 90-car-a-day schedule will be maintained with no further shutdowns anticipated.

He stated about 600 production employees reported for work today.

GAINS CLAIMED BY JAPANESE

By The Associated Press.
SHANGHAI, Feb. 1.—The Japanese army announced tonight it had smashed through desperate Chinese resistance northwest of Nanking and opened the way for fresh advances toward Suchow, the railway junction which has become the main prize of the Chinese-Japanese war.

The Japanese declared they had occupied Linhaiwan, about 100 miles northwest of Nanking, and advanced the Tientsin-Pukow railway to within less than 100 miles of Suchow.

They said their forces were within striking distance of Pengpu, where the railway crosses the Hwai river, next formidable barrier to northward progress.

Chinese admitted they had given ground on this front, reporting "a strategic withdrawal" to the best bank of a river at mingkwang, where for several days fighting had continued at close quarters, with each side reporting heavy losses for the other.

WARNING GIVEN BY BORAH ON FOREIGN AFFAIRS

Says World Led To Believe Great Britain and U. S. In "Alliance"

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Senator Borah (R-Idaho) told the senate today the world has been led to believe Great Britain and the United States had an "alliance" for building up their navies.

The Idaho veteran warned it was the same kind of situation that led to the world war.

Borah gave his views on the foreign situation during a general debate over American foreign policy, in which it was defended by Chairman Pittman (D-Nev.) of the foreign relations committee and attacked by Senator Johnson (R-Calif.).

Pittman, replying to remarks yesterday by Johnson, said American foreign policy was the same as it had been ever since President Roosevelt took office—"Non-intervention, non-interference in the affairs of other governments."

Johnson retorted that President Roosevelt's Chicago speech suggesting a "quarantine" of warring nations, followed by the inconclusive Brussels conference on the far eastern situation, had left the nation "in the pusillanimous position of having threatened a nation and not carried through."

In "Dangerous Position"
Borah, former chairman of the foreign relations committee, said America was being placed in a dangerous position, in view of statements by its officials and those of foreign nations.

Borah referred first to a statement he said was made by the British foreign secretary to parliament that Great Britain and the United States had an understanding, and were in daily consultation on foreign policy.

"When asked what was that relationship," Borah added, "he stated he could not reveal it."

"I regard that statement as most unfortunate because there has gone to the world an understanding that the United States and Great Britain had a working relationship and of such nature that it must be kept a secret."

Pittman had taken the floor first to respond to Johnson's criticism yesterday of American foreign policy.

The Nevada said the nation's foreign policy was that enunciated by President Roosevelt when he was inaugurated—"non-interference in the affairs of other governments."

Johnson had demanded from the administration yesterday a statement of what the American foreign policy was.

Says Policy "Distinct"
Pittman agreed that the senate should be advised on foreign policy from time to time, but asserted the administration's foreign policy was "distinct" and that there had been no divergence from it, since the president enunciated it at his inauguration.

"No man could any longer be

HOUSING BILL IS APPROVED 42 TO 40 BY SENATE

Tied Up Until Last Week By Dispute on Amendment

PREVAILING WAGE PROVISO DROPPED

Measure Is Designed To Spur Private Home
Building

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Senate action gave final congressional approval today to the administration's housing bill.

The vote of approval was 42 to 40.

The housing bill was the first major legislation to go to the White House since the beginning of the special session last November.

It was approved by both houses during the special session, but had been tied up in a joint congressional conference until last week by a dispute over an amendment added by the senate on the motion of Lodge (R-Mass.) to require payment of prevailing wages to labor engaged on construction work financed by government insured mortgages.

In adopting the conference report today, the senate abandoned this amendment.

The housing bill is designed to spur private home construction by liberalizing terms under which the government would insure mortgages for such construction.

Before the vote William Green asked the senate to reject the agreement because it did not include the prevailing wage requirement.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Democratic leaders in the senate worked anxiously behind the scenes today to quell a bi-partisan revolt which threatened indefinite delay in enacting the administration housing bill.

Senator Lodge (R. Mass.), gained such strong support for his proposal to return the measure to a conference committee that administration lieutenants staved off a vote in order to round up their forces.

Lodge was trying to reinstate a requirement that prevailing wages be paid on all home building projects financed by government insured mortgages. This provision was in the bill approved by the senate in December. A conference committee reconciling that measure with the house bill knocked it out.

The housing legislation is intended to encourage private investment in small home construction by permitting the owner to put up in cash only 10 per cent of the cost. A government-insured mortgage would cover the remainder.

If the measure should go back to the conference committee, there might be a long dispute, for the house approved the committee's action in eliminating the Lodge amendment.

Hope For Early Action
Feeling engendered by the senate battle over the anti-lynching bill, temporary sidetracked, added bitterness to the new Democratic split. A number of southern senators were resentful over the fight waged for the anti-lynching measure by Senator Wagner (D. N. Y.), author of the housing bill.

Republicans, leading the demand for the prevailing wage amendment, expressed the belief they had enough democratic support to return the bill to committee.

Administration leaders hoped to send the housing bill to the White House quickly as the first major legislative accomplishment since the 1937 session of congress adjourned last August.

Wagner said the measure could have little immediate effect on the industrial situation, however. He estimated it would take six months to bring about the hoped-for housing boom.

Informed senators said the administration would attempt meanwhile to speed up industrial activity by increased government spending.

Favored Adoption

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—(P)—Senator Clark (D-Mo) voted today to approve the housing bill. Missouri's other senator, Truman, also a Democrat, was absent. He was paired for adoption.

ROBBER SUSPECT HELD AT MARSHALL

MARSHALL, Mo., Feb. 1.—(P)—Sheriff G. Fred Martin awaited today arrival of California officers to take a prisoner wanted on charges of robbery, kidnaping, burglary and attempted murder.

Martin said the prisoner, Joe Stanley, 18, Malta Bend, Mo., was "positively identified" as the man accused of robbing three filling stations, kidnaping a man and his wife and beating another man severely.

The Missouri officer said Sheriff S. B. Sherman of Visalia, Calif., was en route with extradition papers for Stanley.

FILE COMPLAINT ON FORD PLANT AT KANSAS CITY

Regional Director of the NLRB Issues It On UAWA Charges

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 1.—A complaint was issued today against the Ford assembly plant here by the regional director of the national labor relations board on the basis of charges filed by a CIO affiliate that over 1,400 of its members had been ousted for union activities.

The affiliate, the United Automobile Workers of America, staged a brief sit-down strike inside the plant last April and called a strike Dec. 10 against the plant.

Before reopening last October after a seasonal shutdown, plant officials charged the city manager here had failed to provide adequate police protection for men entering the plant and said operations would be taken to another city unless it was provided.

City Manager H. F. McElroy hurried to Detroit, conferred there with Henry Ford and later assured him in writing the protection would be given. After the plant reopened, scores of police were stationed at the entrances and others escorted men to work. When attempts were made to picket the plant, police arrested the pickets, including a few women and children.

On the route of worker caravans to and from the plant, numerous fist fights occurred. In a few cases there was gun fire but most of the bullets went wild. Police at times drove off groups of men with tear gas.

The complaint announced today requires the Ford Motor company to answer within five days and set a hearing for Feb. 10.

E. J. Eagen, regional director of the labor board, said the 11-page complaint charges that over 1,400 employees were discharged, laid off, locked out or forced to resign "for the reason that they joined, formed and assisted and were members of the automobile workers local."

Charge Aid To Form Union
Plant officials repeatedly have emphasized that operations have been normal since the reopening in October and that they recognize no strike because there is no evidence of one in effect. More than 1,000 men have been employed since reopening.

The UAWA charged the Ford plant aided in the formation of a "blue card union" by paying organizers for time spent in organization work, informing employees "membership in the said blue card union was a condition of employment" and supplying the blue card organizers with addresses of Ford workers.

The union charged that officials "caused rumors to be circulated among its employees that the plant would curtail normal operations until said blue card union had secured as members at least 51 per cent of all of the employees engaged in the operations" in Kansas City.

The charge also was made that blue card union organizers were promoted to favorable positions in the plant.

The UAWA alleged the company informed employees the Kansas City plant "would never operate as long as its employees were members of the CIO."

The complaint alleged the plant manufactured or made available to employees "black jacks, lead knuckles, lead pipes and other instruments of violence."

APPEAL TO HELP PUT END TO AIR RAIDS ON CITIES

"Murderous Bombardment" of Civilian Population Deplored

STATEMENT BY FRENCH PREMIER

Would Ask For Other
Powers To Join In Movement

PARIS, Feb. 1.—Premier Camille Chautemps announced tonight he had sent an appeal to governments of other world powers to join with France in putting an end to "murderous bombardments" of Spanish civil populations.

"The French government considers itself duty bound to do everything possible to bring an agreement" between the Spanish government and insurgents to end their air bombings to open cities, said the premier in a statement to the press. He continued:

"With M. Delbos (Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos) I have begun conferences to assure the help of other powers in this initiative. We have addressed an urgent appeal to the humanitarian instincts of government and peoples.

"Bombing operations from the air directed against civil populations rather than military objectives have greatly increased. There is not a man in the world who does not have a feeling of revolt against these massacres.

"The Barcelona government, in pointing out that it acts only in reprisal, has declared it was ready to renounce these bombardments if the same disposition was manifested at Salamanca (the insurgent capital)."

GROUNDHOG DAY

Groundhog day this year is of less importance than usual. Most people already know as much about the weather of this winter as they care to, and the forecasts of this subterranean prophet can tell them little more.

All weather prophets, for that matter, leave us as we have been for some time now, which is cold. What this country needs (as allegedly observed by Mark Twain long ago) is not so many people who talk about the weather but someone to do something about it.

However this may be, we not only expect to follow the prophecies of this particular fellow but we venture one about him. It is our conviction that he will see his shadow and that the six-more-weeks-of-cold-weather forecast will be, if anything, an understatement.

He will scuttle back into his hole so fast he will break the icicles hanging around it, and he probably will stay there until the Fourth of July. For that matter, if he is really smart, he will never come out of it in the first place.

All of which detracts somewhat this year from the quality of the service usually supplied by the groundhog. Come February, usually, and it is alternately warm and cool and hot and, for a day or two, perhaps, even cold. There is a genuine interest then in what the future weeks may hold. There is the feeling that spring, like recovery, may be again just around the corner.

This year it seems to be a long way off. It is dim in the distance. And even if it were closer, most of us couldn't see it. Our windows have been frosted over.

CHUMMY ROYALTY

So the British royal house and the exiled German royal family have "kissed and made up!" King George VI, Queen Elizabeth, and Mary the Queen Mother have sent the former Kaiser a telegram congratulating him on his son's approaching marriage, and signed it "Bertie, May, and Elizabeth."

It's just as well it wasn't "Bertie, May, and Lizzie," for then it would have called to mind even more forcefully the "Nickie and Willie" correspondence that passed between the same Kaiser Bill and the Czar of Russia just before the World War started.

When royalty gets chummy, it would seem to be time for the ordinary citizen to take to the cyclone cellars. Let's hope that this time Bertie and Willie don't get TOO chummy.

Considering what we've laid out for prosperity, it would be a shame to let it go at panic prices.

THEY STRUCK

Apparently there was an unorganized, common consent strike against high meat prices during the past year. Official reports indicate that per capita consumption was only about 129 pounds.

In former years when prices were lower consumption per capita has been as much as 39 pounds more. In 1934, even though that rated as a not specially prosperous year, the rate of meat consumption per capita was 157 pounds, and in 1907 when meat prices were very much lower, the rate of consumption was 165 pounds.

These statistics prove that there is a law more powerful than any regulations or private packer agreements. The shopping housewife will consult the contents of her purse and put the emphasis on cheap cuts or turn to the vegetable bin when chops and sirloin prices get beyond her reach.

WASHINGTON — One report about the Duke of Windsor which persists in diplomatic circles is that the Nazi Government contemplates making use of his now idle regal talent by offering him an important job—possibly the emperorship of Germany.

The truth of this cannot possibly be checked, but there are some extremely interesting facts behind it which make the report worth tucking away as a future possibility.

One fact is that the military clique now ruling Germany has been looking around for a figurehead to put at the helm of the Empire.

Hitler, while still an effective rabble-rouser, is now pretty well out of the picture as far as any administrative work is concerned. Even the original founders of the Nazi Party, with the exception of Goering and possibly Goebbels, are now impotent. Clear indication of this came the other day when the army suppressed the newspaper of Julius Streicher. It did not matter that Streicher was one of Hitler's closest friends and the No. 3 man in the Nazi Party. The army wanted his paper suppressed and it was suppressed.

Military Strategy
Strategy of the military rulers is to ease Hitler off to his retreat in the Bavarian mountains, make him a sort of retired deity like the Living Buddha, then re-establish the Empire with a new figurehead. To this end the Kaiser's children and grandchildren have been looked over carefully.

All of the above has been reported in diplomatic and military intelligence dispatches to Washington, and can be considered authentic. It is at this point—namely, the selection of Edward as Emperor of Germany—that we enter the realm of speculation.

Behind the speculation, of course, is the fact that Edward of Windsor, historically is Edward of Hanover, a direct descendant of the German royal family adopted by the British when they took over George I in 1714. For a long time, it will be recalled, English kings had a hard time disguising their German accent, and nearly all the queens, including Victoria, have been German princesses.

The Duke is a cousin of the Kaiser, spent part of his boyhood with relatives in Germany, has distinct pro-Nazi sympathies, selected Germany as the first country to visit after his honeymoon. Also the Nazis are in need of international friends, and Edward still has a large bloc of friends in England, might even increase German sympathy in the U. S. A.

All of this may never happen, but it is being talked about. So don't be too surprised if Edward, the boy who already has broken the biggest news in the world, breaks another with the return to the throne of the Nazis of the dynasty which Germany loaned to Britain.

Tax Jokers
Anyone who studies the proposed new tax bill carefully can find all sorts of little rich man's jokers tucked away in its intricate folds.

For instance, Recommendation No. 60 of the Ways and Means sub-committee abolishes the tax on furs. The tax on seats at the Metropolitan Opera already has been abolished.

So now Mrs. Astor and Mrs. Morgenthau can wear their ermine to the opera, both completely free of taxes, while the

RAISING A FAMILY (No. 2)

By Olive Roberts Barton

Children are proud. Even the baby is proud. It goes back to the "self-complex" that nature has endowed him with.

They really prefer to be clean, although we have trouble with Johnny's ears sometimes. It is not the ears being clean that bothers Johnny, for he doesn't love dirt, but just that other things become so terribly exciting and important, and washing such a bore, that he is impatient. I feel urged to repeat that children prefer order and cleanliness to disorder and grime.

In this day and age of good housekeeping, a chapter on home conditions may seem useless, but let us go on with it anyway, if only to give the tired mother a hand when she wonders why she tries so hard to keep things nice and nobody seems to appreciate it.

Instill Self-Respect
She may not realize that her nicely scrubbed kitchen or her smoothly-spread beds, the mended clothes and carefully-set tables are having an effect upon the character of the family, but these things are the very essence of self respect. It is not only true that cleanliness (and order) is next to godliness, but that the two are almost inseparable.

The little child who goes to school all tumbled and unkempt, won't compare himself to the few who keep him company in his looks, but to those others, the better-groomed. He won't hang his head and show that he is ashamed. Maybe he isn't ashamed at that. But he is quietly sorting his place in things. It won't be at the top. He says to himself, "I don't belong. I may as well act that way, too." And maybe he learns to hate children not in his own fix.

He makes a survey of the average, and that's what he wants to be, generally speaking. He need not be as well dressed as the richer child, but his clothes should be somewhere near to what most of the others are wearing. And they should be in order.

Reduce Work
Home? How can you keep home bright and clean with all you have to do, mother? Well, you can't do more than your strength permits, that's sure, or your time, either, so just do the best you can. But many homes are complicated by too many things. It might help to strip away the extras and the clutter. It is better to sacrifice some luxury to peace of mind.

Not only this, but the family should help. Let each member do his bit to help you along. After all, it is their house as well as yours. Then, too, every child can learn to slick himself up. Even tiny children can pick up a brush and wash rag and go at it.

Order and cleanliness is such an important factor in family happiness and self-respect that they are worth a tremendous effort to obtain. Pride in person, pride in house and pride in place count for more than many parents think.

CRANIUM CRACKERS

The homes of Jason and Jerome Washburn, brothers, were built exactly alike. The roofs of the buildings met in the middle of the driveway, which gave the auto lane a canopy that extended forward from the garage to the front line of the house.

The Jerome Washburns returned from a movie one evening to find that their bedroom had been ransacked and Mrs. Washburn's heavily insured $50,000 necklace was missing.

Police Sgt. Morton Dutton was assigned to the case. He obtained a description of the necklace that night and returned the next morning to question the Washburns in more detail. He found Mrs. Washburn planting tulip bulbs beside the driveway at the side of her home.

"I'm afraid I'll never see my necklace again," she told Dutton. "But you will," Dutton retorted. "You lifted that necklace yourself and hid it in that flower bed."

"You win," was the quiet answer.

CAST OF CHARACTERS

CONSTANCE CORBY—heroine; richest girl in the world.

BRET HARRINGTON—hero; bridge builder.

RODNEY BRANDON—Connie's fiancé.

KATIE BLYN—Connie's "double."

Yesterday, Connie contrived with Rodney to force a divorce. They plan to sail that night on Connie's yacht.

CHAPTER XXII

CONNIE told Bret after dinner that same evening that she was going away with Rodney Brandon.

This had been the first dinner they had had together since their anniversary. It was the customary affair, stiff and silent, Connie at one end of the long narrow table, Bret at the other, waited upon by the two impeccable English butlers.

"Suppose we have coffee in the drawing room—by ourselves," he suggested, crumpling up his napkin. "I think Mrs. Hardesty can pour, without any assistance," he added to Graeves and Benson.

Since this suited Connie perfectly she did not offer any objection. In the drawing room, she sat down on a divan near the fire, indicated that Graeves might place the coffee service on the low table before her. She knew that she looked very lovely and desirable tonight with the firelight playing on her golden hair, accenting the curve of her cheeks, the violet shadows of her eyes. She wore a loose flowing hostess gown of dark wine velvet, its long sleeves banded in rich dark fur. It was a costume that Bret had said he liked, better perhaps than any other. Which, incongruously, since she told herself she no longer cared what he liked, was her reason for having worn it.

"I HAVE something to tell you," Bret said, speaking slowly, choosing his words. "This seems as good an opportunity as any."

"That's odd," Connie laughed, shrugged her shoulders. "I have something to tell you this evening, too." She handed him his cup of coffee. "Perhaps I had better tell you first. With no 'beating about the bush,' as the saying goes."

"Perhaps you had," he answered gravely. He set the cup down, not tasting its contents.

Connie said, "I'm going away—tonight. With Rodney Brandon."

Bret did not answer. He picked up his cup now, drank slowly.

"Haven't you anything to say?" Connie demanded.

Bret put down his coffee. "What is there for me to say?" he asked.

"Surely you don't expect me to object, stage a row? That would not be modern."

"I'm glad you've decided to behave that way—at last," Connie said. "Of course, after you divorce me, Rodney and I shall most probably marry."

"But I have no intentions of divorcing you," Bret returned quietly.

"I imagine you'll change your mind," Connie said. "After all, it will be the only decent thing you can do, to divorce me."

"You seem to forget," Bret said. "That I don't happen to believe in divorce, or want one. I married you, intending to stay married to you. I realized I was taking the risk that it might not turn out too well; you realized that, too. But in spite of everything we were married. As for my changing my mind, let me assure you, that no matter what you do—how many men you run away with—I shall not divorce you."

"That's not very modern—or civilized!"

"I've never pretended to be either one."

"You mean you'd let me go off with Rodney, any yet you would not give me my freedom?"

Bret got up, took a turn about the room, came back to stand in front of her. "My dear," he said, "you are always talking about freedom. That was what you started out to seek, when I first met you. That is what you think you want now. You don't know that it is something not found by seeking; it is something within one's self. The only freedom that matters."

"I had it for awhile," he went on, his dark face grim and serious. "I let you take it away from me. But I've found it—or myself, rather, by running away; first from one man, then another; from one place to the next. You will have to look within your own heart if you really wish to find it."

"I didn't ask you to preach to me upon any subject," Connie stated coldly.

"I told you that I shall not divorce you, or let you divorce me, under any circumstances." His eyes met hers; they seemed devoid of emotion, but there was no mistaking the firm determination in their depths. "I believe," he added, almost gently, "that you know me well enough, by now, to realize that I shall not change my mind."

WASN'T that what she first had thought about him: that here was a man who knew what he believed to be right, and who would not be moved from the course he had chosen? After their first quarrel, in that dingy little hotel of their first honeymoon, when she had thrown herself into his arms, sobbing, she had known then that the day would come when tears or soft lips—or even his love for her—would not move him. Wasn't that why she had loved him?—for this strength in him, this stern stability—because he had been different in this from any man she ever had known.

She knew, looking at him now, that Bret meant what he had said. He would not divorce her, no matter what she did. There did not seem much point in running away with Rodney under these circumstances!

"We can't go on this way," Connie said. "Surely you see that? Despairing each other, living like strangers. What if I told you that I love Rodney? That I know now I have always loved him?"

She saw that fine white line spring around Bret's mouth, the pain that leaped into his eyes for an unguarded moment. He said, "I shouldn't believe you."

"But I'm telling you that it's true." She had to hurt him, as much as she could. There was no other way. Even though this was a deliberate, cruel lie that she told him.

"Then," he said, speaking slowly again, carefully, "I shall not tell you—that I intended telling you this evening. Perhaps it's just as well that you told me first." He bowed, as though he were saying farewell—a farewell that was to last for a long, long time, perhaps forever.

he said, "that I forgot that love is stronger than life itself. The first was when I thought I could let you go away, when I loved you. Now—that I can keep you—when you no longer love me."

"You mean . . ." Connie's hand flew to her breast, her heart was beating so furiously; she must not let him know it. "You mean, then, that if I go with Rodney you won't try to stop me? You'll give me the divorce?"

He bowed again, from the hips, low. His face was set in that stern, unyielding look. "That won't be necessary," he said. "You may get your divorce, as you like, without going away. I am going away. That was what I meant to tell you."

Before she could speak, he turned on his heel, strode out of the room, leaving her alone, her heart no longer beating madly, but filled with an emptiness such as she had never dreamed existed, such an aching despair and tortured yearning.

half of civil war but the latest resulted in the heaviest casualties thus far.

The British admiralty office confirmed the sinking and there were indications it would add to the bitterness of parliament debate on foreign issues.

British foreign secretary Anthony Eden already was reported considering new efforts to "humanize" the Spanish conflict by prevailing upon both government and insurgents to stop the bombing of towns behind the battle lines.

Viscount Swinton, British air minister, continued his conference with French air experts on speeding aircraft construction through cooperation between France and Britain.

Alert Leslie Horne-Belisha, secretary for war, pushed plans for army reorganization at the first of a series of "Commanders' conferences" (between Maj. Gen. Viscount Gort, chief of the imperial general staff, and first class commanding officers).

WARNING GIVEN BY BORAH ON FOREIGN AFFAIRS

in doubt as to the foreign policy," Pittman said.

But then Johnson asked whether the foreign policy was the one referred to by Pittman, or the one outlined by the president in his Chicago speech.

"He says," Johnson asserted, referring to Pittman "that the foreign policy has continually been one of the non-interference under any circumstances."

"What did it mean when the president said nations should be quarantined? It was said in the press at the time that the secretary of state's office had worked for a week finding the appropriate word. The appropriate word was found to be quarantined."

"When that word is used by the responsible head of a nation what was meant? Only one thing—and then, after that, we send an ambassador to Belgium to meet with various other governments to do, or die. They sat there and made clear what was the foreign policy of the United States and the world."

"When they got through there was no answer, we were in the pusillanimous position of having threatened a country and not carried through."

"I asked yesterday and I ask today what is this nation's foreign policy."

"I am concerned about what is happening today and may happen in the future. I ask today as I asked yesterday—what is the foreign policy of the United States?"

Pittman, replying, said he could not agree that the foreign policy of the United States "may be determined by the analysis of a word." He said he was "not dealing with words" but the "acts of our government in foreign policy."

"I say," Johnson shot back, "that no head of a nation should make a threat unless he was willing to go through with it."

"If he can't go through with a threat, then he should explain to the people why he can't."

"Ships Side By Side"

Borah recalled what he said was a statement by the late American ambassador, Robert W. Bingham that in the next conflict Great Britain and America would have men and ships fighting side by side.

"These things," he added, "cause other nations to understand that we have a foreign policy based upon a particular relationship with Great Britain. When they look and see us building a navy like was never built before they reach but one conclusion."

Borah said "it is extraordinary for prominent people from Britain to come to the United States and spread propaganda that there can be no such thing as peace except through a combination between Great Britain and the United States."

"Great Britain had announced a naval building policy. Succeeding that, the United States has announced a great naval building policy."

"Taken with what preceded and followed, the nations of the world believe that the United States has an implicit alliance and is building its navy in accord with that," Borah said.

"That should be not be permitted to remain unanswered."

"I don't challenge the foreign policy stated by the committee chairman," Borah said, "But if these things are permitted to continue, American foreign policy will be affected despite anything we may do."

Pittman said he saw "no relation" between the events described by Borah.

"I do know that the defense program of Great Britain was started two years ago," Pittman said. "I know our naval program has risen in the last two months."

Pittman said this country was avoiding "alliance, either for offensive or defensive." Such a policy, he added, rested upon "our self preservation."

The "cheapest thing this country can do would be to spend a few billion dollars" on national defense, the Nevada said, to "preserve the civilization, humanity and morality of the world."

He argued that there were only two methods of defense, preparedness for war and a trust in "honesty, morality and humanity of other peoples."

"We can't trust the humanity of other peoples," Pittman declared. "We have to be prepared to destroy them."

"This government can't assist any warring power against an unfriendly power without becoming involved," Pittman added. "But the people of this country may express their resentment in any legal way they wish."

He suggested that "ostracism" would be a better term than "quarantine."

TRUMAN INFERS FIGHT BE WAGED ON MILLIGAN

U. S. District Attorney In Denial of 'Persecution' In Fraud Cases

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 1.—Senator Harry S. Truman indicated today he would fight on the senate floor reappointment of U. S. District Attorney Maurice M. Milligan, Kansas City vote fraud prosecutor, reportedly opposed by T. J. Pendergast, democratic chief.

Truman, in St. Louis to address a gridiron dinner tonight, declared he would "act when the occasion presents itself" after expressing displeasure that he had "not been consulted in the matter by the President."

The junior Missouri senator said he had not discussed Milligan with Senator Bennett Champ Clark, who originally recommended the appointment, but declared Clark's stand would not keep him from endorsing the senior senator's re-election.

Denial of "Persecution"

Truman would not comment immediately on an address here last night in which Milligan denied by inference Truman's accusation of "perfection" rather than "prosecution" in the vote frauds.

Milligan stated "I am a prosecutor, not a persecutor," and was applauded by his audience of St. Louis attorneys. He mentioned only briefly the 50 convictions and no acquittals he has won in the Kansas City election cases.

Speaking on federal prosecution generally, Milligan declared America's most serious crime is corruption of the ballot.

"If the ballot of America is to be despoiled by fraud and corruption," he commented, "we should drag the Statue of Liberty down from its pedestal and erect thereon a more appropriate figure of a huge monster; place in its extended hand the black flag of tyranny, and carve on its brow these words: 'Liberty, a hollow mockery.'"

Twice his remarks were interrupted as referring to the fight surrounding his possible reappointment.

He stated: "I have seen prosecutors become zealous to win convictions by foul means as well as fair. But I have tried during my term to give the benefit of the doubt to persons under investigation and I have closed many files without presentation to the grand jury."

"I am a prosecutor, not a persecutor."

Another statement of possible significance was "in my humble opinion the reason underlying the success of federal law enforcement is due to the fact that these enforcement agencies are not dominated by politics."

"No law enforcement agency can be wholly effective that is controlled by our subject to political influences."

Milligan commented also in regard to election frauds, that the very foundation of our government is the will of the people, and this can only be expressed by honest and untrammelled ballots.

"Corruption of the ballot even in one ward, or in one city, may determine a national election and decide policies that may change the very destiny of our nation. In the sanctity of the ballot lies the security of our past, the safety of the present, and the hope of the future."

SOME ADVANCES TO STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—(AP)—Quiet but persistent buying appeared in today's stock market and leaders were lifted fractions to 2 points generally. There were one or two up 6 or so at the best.

Profit realizing furries were frequent, with in-and-out traders who got aboard at last week's lows inclined to cash in on the two-day rally.

While the ticker tape moved lethargically throughout, analysts' quarters seemed encouraged by the ability of the list to absorb offerings and it was not overlooked that relatively active intervals were on the upside.

Transfers were around 700,000 shares. Selected steels, rails, coppers, oils, metals and specialties were in front, these being picked up, brokers said, partly on the belief their recent lengthy decline probably had discounted the slide in earnings.

Extreme advances were reduced near the close, although many issues finished near top levels of the session.

DOUBT ON NEED OF $800,000,000 IN NAVY BUILDING

Some House Members Critical on Increase Proposed

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The navy's top-ranking officer told congress today the United States would build battleships larger than the 35,000-ton limit fixed by the 1936 London treaty if other powers disregarded the limitation.

"It is almost certain," Admiral William D. Leahy said, "that the treaty nations would invoke an escape clause and build larger ships if it were determined that other countries were doing so."

The chief of naval operations made its statement of the house naval committee during the second day of hearings on legislation to carry out an $800,000,000 naval expansion program proposed in response to President Roosevelt's recommendation for a flat 20 per cent increase in the size of the fleet.

Earlier, he told the committee of unofficial reports to the navy that Japan is building 43,000-ton battleships. This information, he said, had been published in Italy.

Asked by Representative Mott (R., Ore.), whether the intelligence service did not know accurately whether Japan was building such super-dreadnaughts, Leahy replied:

"We have an intelligence department but it has not been able to get the information in Japan." He asserted this government knew nothing of the tonnage or gun calibers of the new Japanese ships.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Some members of the house naval committee, questioning ranking naval officers, expressed doubts today that American foreign policy requires an $800,000,000 fleet expansion.

Rep. Maas (R-Minn.) ranking minority member of the committee, and Rep. Kniffin (D-Ohio) were especially critical of some aspects of the 20 per cent increase recommended by President Roosevelt.

"In what way is our national policy endangered and by whom?" Maas repeatedly asked Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations. Leahy testified at the hearings on a bill to authorize construction of 47 additional warships and 22 auxiliaries.

Opposes "Policing" Duty

Kniffin told the committee he was opposed to using the fleet as "a police force" or as "a subsidiary for some organization that wants to exploit people on the other side of the globe."

Leahy replied that the proposed building program contained nothing that would permit of "aggressive action, of policing the world, or of projecting an attack against the territory of any other naval power."

Senator Johnson (R-Calif.) raised the foreign policy question in the senate, demanding a definite statement on this country's purposes.

"I am going to pursue this subject," he told reporters after a floor speech in which he de-

Johnson said he faced a difficult task in getting the president or secretary of state to make a definite statement.

"I want no peripatetic ambassador running around Europe saying over there to various chancelleries whatever may be in his head," Johnson told the senate.

This remark, he said later, was aimed at Norman H. Davis, the administration's "ambassador at large."

Mrs. Allan R. Browne, of Kansas City, a former Sedalian, was the guest speaker at the meeting of Sorosis Monday afternoon, and gave a very interesting and informative talk on ballet dancing.

Mrs. Browne was introduced by her sister, Mrs. William R. Courtney, chairman of the program. Both young women are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. J. Clark Longan of route 3. Mrs. D. P. Dyer, president of the Sorosis club, presided over the business session.

Mrs. Browne was accompanied to Sedalia by Miss Virginia Borden of Kansas City, who demonstrated the first steps and exercises one receives in training for ballet dancing, foot and arm exercises, and presented a classical dance.

In explaining her interest in ballet dancing, Mrs. Browne said she believed it had smoldered in her since she was a small child, and she became more interested when she read the tragedy of Nijinsky, an episode of ballet dancing. At the present time the speaker's two children are studying dancing and her interest in their work is doubly interesting because of her general knowledge in the art they are studying.

When we speak of ballet dancing we think of the Russians, she said, but ballet dancing flourished in France long before. One of the two of the greatest ballerinas were mistresses of some of the rulers who were influenced by them. In 1661 Louis XIV permitted a room in the Louvre to be set aside for an academy of dancing. In this ballroom some of the greatest spectacles were staged for visitors to the court. At first the performers were of the nobility only, later a few professional male dancers began to appear. They were in the rudimentary form, and performances were given on the ballroom floor as there were no elevated stages.

It took 200 years to perfect the vertical form of dancing, Mrs. Browne said. In 1763 when Catherine the Great was crowned in Russia the ballet was being nurtured by the state's Imperial Ballet School. It drew children from all ranks of life. There were about twelve chosen annually from possibly a hundred applicants and to be chosen was a great honor. After twelve years of training in the academy they became members of the Czar's dancers, and if they continued for a considerable length of time were retired on a pension.

An Italian dancing teacher, Petipa is father of the Russian ballet, Mrs. Browne told her hearers, and he ruled it for years. Male dancers became subordinate and were only supporters for ballerinas, giving occasionally a solo dance. At first the main attendants at productions were old men and children, but in the 19th century a change took place with the appearance of the Italian dancer Taglione, one of the first toe dancers, who took St. Petersburg by storm. He infused new life in the ballet. Seats and boxes were filled and more performances were given.

It was Diaghileff who had the idea of taking the Russian ballet to the west, he took an art exhibit to Paris, then a Russian concert program. It became smart to attend. In 1907, in conjunction with an opera he presented some new ballet dancing and revamped the old, and this was sensational.

The interest of the public was what he wanted and he worked out the program which still exists and these ballets are sumptuous in the extreme, a revel for the eyes of the beholder. Diaghileff presented Nijinsky to Paris. The ballet of Russia was purely classic, almost too classic, and had become monotonous. Every generation, she said, lives through a revolution of ideas and by making changes and effects the ballet was saved from death.

Mrs. Browne spoke of the three young ballerinas who are in this country on a tour, and said that often the word is misused, for a real ballerina is a foremost artist and there are only five real Russian ballerinas.

In closing her talk she said that in order to take up ballet dancing one should have beauty, personality, mechanical ability, character, dramatic ability, technique and musicality.

Members of Sorosis will have the privilege, on Monday, February 14, of having as their guest speaker Dr. Harold Swanberg of Quincy, Ill., editor of the Radiological Review and Mississippi Valley Medical Journal, who will speak on cancer.

Dr. Swanberg will be in Sedalia that day to address a meeting of doctors of the sixth council district.

The P. E. O. society will meet Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Henry Salvator of 1015 South Barrett avenue, as hostess. A 1 o'clock luncheon will be served at the country club following which the members will go to the Salvator home for the business session at 2:30 o'clock.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

FIRST HAND STUDY OF DIGESTION BEGAN CENTURY AGO AFTER GUN-SHOT ACCIDENT

In June, 1822, on the Island of Mackinaw there was a fur trading station owned by Major John H. Kinzie and Gordon S. Hubbard, two men who later founded the city of Chicago.

To that trading station came a boy named Alexis St. Martin. He began playing with a shot gun which accidentally exploded and tore away a portion of his side.

The doctor of the fort, William Beaumont, came at once, examined the boy and said he would not live 36 hours. However, he sewed him up and kept him at rest.

Gradually the boy recovered. For two years Doctor Beaumont treated him daily. By 1825 the wound had largely healed but it became possible now to look directly into the boy's stomach.

Doctor Beaumont tied a piece of meat to a piece of surgical thread and dropped it into the stomach. One-half hour later he withdrew the string and studied the effects of the process of digestion. He also studied the gastric juice which is utilized in digestion and also the effects of alcohol and other substances on the stomach.

In 1833 Doctor Beaumont published a book which told what he had learned about digestion. These fundamental studies represent the beginning of our scientific knowledge of this subject.

Since that time in many ways the studies of Beaumont have been continued. Other people have been found with similar deformities so that it is possible to study the stomach at first hand.

The great Pavlov, Russian investigator, operated on animals to reproduce this condition and finally worked out an operation whereby a part of the stomach is brought to the exterior of the body and thus observed.

By means of balloons introduced into the stomach and then inflated, it is possible to determine the motions and reactions of the stomach to various conditions.

Among the most recent discoveries are devices by which

Five Sedalians Fight Way to Golden Glove Championship

Seven Will Represent District In Sectional Championship Bout at Kansas City Feb. 7-8

AGGIE WINS BOUT

Clinton Whirlwind K. O.'s Lexington Fighter In 41 Seconds

A thousand roaring fight fans packed into the Convention Hall in Liberty Park Monday night to see the final rounds of the Sedalia district Golden Gloves championships sponsored by the Sedalia Democrat and Capital. Sixteen bouts were on the card and out of these seven champions emerged to represent this district in the Kansas City Golden Gloves eliminations on February 7 and 8.

Seven fighters from the Wentworth Military Academy appeared on the card last night. One, Pierce Allan, won the championship in the 175 pound class. He had no opponent in this class. The fighters were accompanied here by Captain Edgar Muench, their coach.

At the intermission, Horace Lawson, secretary of the Missouri Boxing Association was introduced to the fans.

McMillian a Champion
Aggie McMillian of Clinton met Walter Rogers of Wentworth in the middleweight championship class. McMillian opened the fight with a barrage of rights which gained him a knockout after 41 seconds of the first round had passed.

Hughes A Champion
Mike Hughes and Bud Martin made their third appearance of the evening in a bout for the 147 pound class championship. Hughes carried the fight in the first driving Martin to the ropes twice in the round. Martin missed badly with his right.

Hughes scored to Martin's head twice in the first of the second but shortly after walked into a high hook. As the bell ended the fighters were clinched along the ropes. Hughes had the edge in this round. Martin rushed Hughes in the third but missed with his left and right and Hughes drove two short punches home. Hughes took the decision.

Murray A Champion
Pete Stuart met Dean Murray for the 118 pound championship. Both had appeared on the card before. Murray weaved into Stuart as the first opened and backed him toward the ropes. Stuart tried a hard right which landed high on Murray's head. Both clinched repeatedly in the first. The round ended in a flurry of punches.

Murray slipped under Stuart's guard in the first of the second and landed a short left. Stuart tried to duck under Murray's guard but walked into a right hook. Murray landed his right twice in succession mid-way in the round to rock Stuart. The third opened furiously as both tried to bring the fight his way. Murray bored into Stuart as the bell sounded ending the bout. The decision went to Murray making him the Golden Gloves 118 pound class champion.

Landers a Champion
Buck Miller met Cecil Landers for the 112 pound class Golden Gloves. Miller tried his weaving tactic on Landers but Landers came out swinging and drove him around the ring. Landers had a slight edge in the first. As the second opened the fighters met in the center of the ring for a brisk exchange. Miller backed away but drove back in hard. Miller had a little the better of it in the close fighting but Landers scored often with his long right.

Landers was firing by the end of the second but Miller lost the round by landing a blow after the bell.

Miller bored in during the third but Landers was willing and stood toe-to-toe with him swapping leather. Landers took the decision. Both boys, however will go to Kansas City.

Hyatt Wins KO.
Jack LaMasters of Wentworth met Luther Hyatt in a 180 class bout. Hyatt floored his opponent early in the first for a short count. Hyatt had him against the ropes and put on the finishing touches just before the bell rang ending the first. Hyatt's KO made him the 180 pound champion.

Billy Smith A Champion
James Wright forfeited to Billy Smith in the 126 pound class giving Smith the championship.

Whitley by Decision
Sonny Boy Buford and Bat-

his last round showing when he punished Capps in the clinches.

Charles Shobe of Sedalia met Joe Howard in a 100 class bout. Both are colored. Shobe is the fighter who had trouble with his pants in the last bout. The first round went to Shobe by a narrow margin but Howard came out in the second with murder in his eye and turned loose a flock of rights and lefts that drove Shobe to the ropes. Shobe came back in the third to take the decision.

Bud Martin made his second appearance against Bobby Anderson of Clinton in a 147 pound semi-final. Martin repeated his earlier display of rights and landed three times in the opening seconds. Anderson, however, came in for more. Martin started all over again in the second and cut Anderson just below the ear. As the third opened Martin landed two hard rights and lefts and Anderson staggered into a clinch. Martin won the decision.

Hughes Wins Decision
Mike Hughes fought Walter Martin in another 147 pound class semi-final. Neither seemed willing to open up in the first since they had already fought once. Hughes landed his right late in the first to gain a slight edge. Martin pushed the fight in the first of the second but Hughes hit him with both hands as he bored in. Hughes gained a little in the in-fighting.

Martin carried the fight in the third to Hughes who hit him only in the close fighting. Martin landed two hard rights to Hughes' head midway in the round opening a cut above his eye. Hughes won the decision.

JACOBS CASTS ABOUT FOR AN ABLE BATTLER

Max Schmeling Is Still No. 1 Challenger For Louis Match

By DREW MIDDLETON

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—(AP)—"Wanted: Young man between 19 and 24. Must be strong, fearless and over 190 pounds. Killer instinct appreciated but not necessary. Apply Mike Jacobs, 20th Century Sporting Club, New York."

Don't be surprised if Czar Mike starts a string of advertisements in that tone. His heavyweights, the pay ore in the prize-fight business, are running low. Unless Mike can pop up with an able and willing young man, the class is headed for the doldrums.

The young man who is to save the business apparently isn't fighting now. But if he drops his plow, packing case or pickaxe and comes a runnin' he can earn himself a tremendous wage and the lasting affection of Uncle Mike and the rest of the industry.

Mike might add to his ad that the novice will get a strict examination. No comedians need apply. Likewise the market is glutted with second Louises, Dempseys and Tunneys. What the class needs is a first Joe Smith, some hardy young fellow who can punch, box and take it in a manner entirely his own.

Jacobs has Joe Louis, the champion, Max Schmeling, Tony Farr and a host of fellows named legion. Also Tony Galento. But no one wants to fight Tony. He is too rough.

Louis Not So Sly
Louis has proved he is not the combination of nasty-tempered tiger and fly fox he was first acclaimed. He is the hardest and fastest puncher in his class, but he cannot take a punch and he is no whirlwind against an unorthodox fighter.

Schmeling is preparing for his meeting with Joe sometime this summer, somewhere in the United States. The Uhlan apparently has been unhorsed in the last six months. He couldn't flatten Ben Ford in Hamburg Sunday and Ford has lost to such worthies as the elder Baer and Maurice Strickland.

However, on the strength of his K. O. win over Louis in 1936, Max is still the No. 1 challenger. But he is 33.

There is a large gap between Louis and Max and the rest of the pachyderms. Tommy Farr has lost two American starts. Outside of his ability to remain erect after plenty of pounding, Farr has shown nothing fancy.

Peeking around the robust Mr. Galento, a glimpse of the rest of the herd is uninspiring. Jimmy Adamick, Buddy Baer, Steve Dudas, Red Burman, Nathan Mann, Bob Tow, Strickland and Bob Pastor haven't shown anything to cause dancing in the streets. The class is back where it was before Louis started to hammer out a career. They're even talking about reintroducing Max Baer to the customers.

If there's a potential great heavyweight in the crowd—boy, front and center.

TIGERS LOSE TO COLUMBIA 50 TO 42

A large last minute rally led by Meyers who scored eight points in the closing minutes of play failed to overcome a large Columbia lead and the Tigers lost a rugged basketball game Monday to the Kewpies 50 to 42 on the victors court.

Faced by Hartley, Walden and Brewer, the latter a 200 pound center and star football player, Columbia took the lead in the opening quarter where it remained throughout the game.

Scoring in all periods of the game Alpert, tall fast center, for Smith-Cotton took individual scoring honors with 17 points. Meyers and Walden of Columbia tied for second honors with 14 points each.

With but few minutes remaining in the last quarter Meyers dropped in four baskets from all angles on the court to bring his team count to 42 as the gun sounded.

SHARP UPTURN TO WHEAT MARKET
CHICAGO, Feb. 1.—(AP)—Wheat soared nearly two cents a bushel in Chicago today, stimulated by an unexpected sharp upturn of the Liverpool market and unfavorable crop conditions southwest.

There was talk that France might soon be in the market for United States red inter wheat. Special notice also was taken of a report from a leading Chicago crop specialist saying soil and moisture conditions as of February 1 promised drought damage to wheat throughout many important sections of the United States and Western Canada.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 cent above yesterday's finish. May 94 1/4 to 94 3/4, July 89 1/4 to 89 3/4, and oats unchanged to 1/4 cent advance.

Today's Answers to CRANIUM CRACKERS

Officer Dutton's suspicions were aroused when he saw Mrs. Washburn planting tulips under the roofed driveway where no sun could reach the flowers. Since tulips will not grow in the shade, Dutton deduced that the tulip bed was only a stage setting and that the necklace had been buried with the bulbs.

QUEER QUIRKS OF WINTER WEATHER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—(AP)—J. B. Kincer, the nation's official weather recorder, agreed today with millions of other Americans that the present winter is unusual.

"Some people say it might be due to sun spots," said Kincer, "but I don't see how sun spots and the radiations they produce would produce the queer weather effects we've had this winter."

From the Mississippi river east, he said, about half the normal precipitation fell in December and January. In parts of Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Texas and Louisiana, there has been up to four times the normal amount of rain and snow.

The Nation 106,000
Lives In 1937

CHICAGO, Feb. 1.—(P)—Accidental deaths cost the nation 106,000 lives in 1937, the National Safety Council computed today, including an annual all time high of 39,700 in the traffic field.

The permanently injured were estimated at 375,000, temporarily injured at 9,400,000.

This "gruesome jamboree of carelessness," the council said, ran up a bill of $3,700,000,000.

It was broken down into $2-

550,000,000 in wage loss and medical expense, $870,000,000 for property damage in traffic accidents and $285,000,000 property loss in fires.

Despite a 4 per cent drop from 1936 in total deaths, the toll was higher than for any preceding year. Council statisticians attributed the decrease largely to a mild summer which reduced heat deaths by approximately 4,500.

An "encouraging phase" was a sharp decline in the child accident death rate. It plunged 13 per cent for children under 15, from 16,200 deaths in 1936 to 15,000. Adult accidental deaths decreased 3 per cent.

Major disasters had little effect on the grand total.

"Accidental deaths," the council said, "occur mostly in ones and twos."

Traffic Toll Heavier

Traffic deaths increased by 1,600, or 4 per cent, over the council's 1936 figure but it was explained in part by a 9 per cent increase in motor travel.

On a mileage basis, the motor vehicle death rate declined from 16.6 deaths per 100,000,000 miles in 1936 to 15.9. Total reduction since 1925 was estimated at 20 per cent.

Milwaukee, took undisputed top ranking in its class with a vehicle traffic death rate of 10.8 per 100,000.

Beverly, Mass., population 25,500, was the largest city which had no traffic deaths last year.

Falls, as usual account for more accidental deaths than any other cause except traffic—approximately 26,000.

Burns caused 8,000 fatalities, drowning 7,000, railroad accidents (not motor vehicle) 4,000, fire-arms, 3,000, gas poison, 2,000, other poisons 2,000 and miscellaneous causes, 15,000.

Chandler Accepts
Barkley Challenge

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—(P)—Governor A. B. (Happy) Chandler of Kentucky accepted today the challenge of Senator Alben W. Barkley, Democratic floor leader, to a political battle.

"If I read the signs aright," Chandler said, "the people of Kentucky will retire Barkley at the next election."

"He is going to have an opponent—strong opposition—in the campaign," added the governor, who said he would not announce until his return home whether he himself would seek the senatorial nomination.

The public break between the governor and Barkley, President Roosevelt's lieutenant in the senate, created a stir from the White House to capitol hill.

Barkley issued a formal statement saying:

"For months I have been threatened from Frankfort (capital of Kentucky) with opposition in my race for reelection unless I entered into a conspiracy which would have involved Senator Logan, the president of the United States, and me, to find some way to eliminate Senator Logan from the senate by appointing him to something else * * *."

A vacancy exists on the sixth federal circuit court, which serves Kentucky. There had been talk that Logan might be appointed and that Chandler then might succeed him in the senate.

Logan declared, however, that he would not accept the appointment if it were offered and that he would support Barkley for reelection.

"I have never requested Senator Barkley, Senator Logan or the President to do anything for me," retorted Chandler.

"The people of Kentucky know me so well, I do not have to issue a long statement bragging about it. It is well known Barkley has been using Kentucky for years as a place from which to get elected."

DEADLINE FEB. 15 ON LICENSE PLATES

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 1.—(P)—Missouri motorists must have their 1938 license plates on their cars by midnight, Feb. 15, or they better watch out.

That dead line was set today by Secretary of State Dwight H. Brown in a letter to highway patrolmen, sheriffs and police asking "your usual fine cooperation" in enforcing the license law.

V. H. Steward, state motor vehicle license commissioner, said the highway patrol, in addition to checking vehicle licenses, would continue its campaign to see that all motorists have obtained driver's licenses.

Steward said more money had been collected for new auto licenses to date than at the same time last year, and added that a million driver's licenses had been sold. He estimated the final number would be a million and a quarter.
